

The Pew Global Attitudes Project is a series of worldwide public opinion surveys. Since its inception in 2002, the Pew Global Attitudes Project has surveyed over 90,000 people in 50 countries. Surveys were conducted by local organizations under the direction of Princeton Survey Research Associates International. Full details about the surveys, and the project more generally, are available at www.pewglobal.org

NOTE: Data based on national samples except in China, India, Morocco and Pakistan where the sample was disproportionately or exclusively urban. NOT ALL QUESTIONS WERE ASKED IN CHINA

PROCEDURAL NOTE: The following topline data is based on two questionnaires, one in the six predominantly Muslim countries (Turkey, Indonesia, Pakistan, Lebanon, Jordan and Morocco) and the other in the eleven countries where Muslims are not the majority population. For question ordering of both questionnaires, see the global attitudes website: www.pewglobal.org.
